- If the safe weighs less than 150kg when empty, it must be bolted to the structure of the premises.
- When the firearm is in the safe, the safe MUST be locked.
- The key to the safe must be carried by the licence holder or kept securely in a separate room from the safe.

'Intruder alarm system' means an alarm system which is installed, maintained and operated in accordance with Australian Standard 2201.1:2007 (as amended from time to time) and which, in the event of an intrusion, activates an audible alarm warning device and an external visible alarm warning light.

- Ammunition must be stored in a separate locked container (not with the firearm) unless the receptacle is purpose built to store ammunition separately from the firearms.

Category E Handgun requirements

The Chief Commissioner of Police will set storage requirements on an individual basis.

Category 1 & 2 Collectors/Antique Handgun Collectors requirements (All categories of firearms)

Firearms must be stored -

    - the windows must be covered by security bars.
  - Any doors:
    - must be a solid material or covered by a steel sheet or reinforced by firmly fixed steel mesh;
    - must be fitted with a lock of a dead latch type or an extra hasp and barrel bolt padlock which is of such a nature as to reduce the possibility of the door being sprung from the jamb; and
    - must be hinged with concealed hinge pins or with hinge pins that are welded to prevent the pins from being removed.
  - In a container:
    - made of steel or another robust material;
    - fixed to the wall or floor of the room;
    - with doors that are attached with concealed or welded hinges; and
    - when firearms are in the container, it must be locked, with a lock which is so constructed as to prevent the doors of the container being easily sprung.
  - The premises must be fitted with an 'intruder alarm system' if more than 15 antique handguns are stored on the premises, or, in any other case, if more than 5 firearms are stored on the premises.
- 'Intruder alarm system' means an alarm system which is installed, maintained and operated in accordance with Australian Standard 2201.1:2007 (as amended from time to time) and which, in the event of an intrusion, activates an audible alarm warning device and an external visible alarm warning light.
- Firearms can only be removed from the container by the licence holder.
  - The key to the container in which the firearms are stored must be carried by the licence holder or kept securely in a separate room from the container, not accessible to persons who do not hold the appropriate licence.
  - Any bolt or firing pin which is required to be stored separately from the firearm it is part of, must be stored in the same manner as is required for the storage of a firearm under a licence for Category A or B Longarm.

NOTE: If less than 15 Category A or B firearms are owned under a Category 1 Firearms Collectors Licence and no other firearms are stored at the premises, the following storage requirements may be adhered to:

Firearms must be stored in a receptacle-

- Made of hardwood or steel that is not easy to penetrate;
- Which, if the container weighs less than 150kg when empty, must be securely fixed to the floor or wall of the premises in such a manner that it is not easily removable; and
- Which, when any firearm is stored in it, is locked with a lock of sturdy construction.

Ammunition Collector and Heirlooms Licence requirements:

- Ammunition or firearms are to be stored in a container made of hardwood or steel that can not be easily penetrated.
- If the container weighs less than 150kg empty, it must be securely fixed to the floor or a wall frame in such a manner that it is not easily removable.
- When the firearm is in the container, it MUST be locked with a lock of sturdy construction.
- A firearm under an Heirlooms Licence may be displayed by being fixed to the wall in a manner that makes it unable to be readily removed.
